

On the Way to Fun

An Emotion-Based Approach to Successful Game Design

Roberto Dillon
DigiPen Institute of Technology

A K Peters, Ltd.
Natick, Massachusetts

Table of Contents

---

xi	Foreword
xiii	Preface
xv	Introduction: What Makes a Game Fun?

1 Emotions and Games: The 6-11 Framework

3	What Are Basic Emotions and Instincts?
7	Introducing the 6-11 Framework
17	Contextualizing the 6-11 Framework
23	Emotional Analysis of a Gameplay Session
27	Making Fun Games the Emotional Way

33 Case Studies: Retro Games

35	Why Retro Games?
36	• Computer Space Vs. Space Invaders
40	• Asteroids
44	• Battlezone

48	·	PacMan
52	·	Rescue at Rigel
56	·	Haunted House
60	·	Pooyan
64	·	Robotron 2084
68	·	Pitfall!
72	·	Advanced Dungeons &amp; Dragons: Cloudy Mountain
78	·	3D Monster Maze
82	·	E.T. the Extra-Terrestrial
88	·	Dracula
92	·	Planetfall
96	·	Safecracker
100	·	Seven Cities of Gold
104	·	Spy vs. Spy
108	·	Little Computer People
112	·	Captain Blood

117 Case Studies: Indie Games

119	Why Indie Games?
122	· Toribash
126	· Braid

---

130 · I Wish I Were the Moon

134 · Castle Crashers

138 · Tag

142 · Flower

146 · Plants vs. Zombies

150 · World of Goo & Crayon Physics Deluxe

155   Conclusions

157   In the End

165   References

167   Index